Milo, Tock, and the Humbug have an encounter with the Demon of Insincerity. The demon really does not appear the way that he describes himself. Once Milo looks at him through the telescope he says, "It certainly pays to have a good look at things". What does Milo mean by this statement? How has the telescope saved Milo and his friends? Refer back to what Alec Bings told Milo about the telescope (Chapter 11) when he gave it to him.

The king tells Milo “so many things are possible just as long as you don’t know they’re impossible”. What does this statement mean? Have you ever been faced with a task that someone else thought was impossible only to prove them wrong? What might have happened if Milo and his friends were unsuccessful rescuing Rhyme and Reason?
